Conference Handbook

Electronic Devices and Usage of the Internet

Electronic devices can be used during committee; delegates are allowed to use the Internet during committee sessions.

Debate

To prevent misunderstandings and delays during formal committee debates, delegates must have a comprehensive understanding of the rules and their use. In the large General Assembly committees, the Speaker's List can become quite long but yields time, questions, moderated caucus, and comments from the floor, as well as the proposal of amendments, to keep the debate current and flowing smoothly. Thus, knowledge of the rules is vital for airing your views through one of these mechanisms. Committee meetings over the conference of the weekend will roughly adhere to the following pattern.

Statement by the Secretariat

At any time, any member of the Secretariat may make an oral or written statement or announcement to the committee regarding an update on their topic. Such an announcement is not questionable.

General Powers of the Committee Staff

The CHAIRPERSON will declare the opening and closing of each meeting and may propose that the committee adopt a certain procedural motion. During debate, the Chairperson shall exercise absolute control over the proceedings. Thus, in effect, he will direct the flow of formal debate, accord the right to speak, rule on points of order, announce decisions, and ensure and enforce the observance of these rules. The other members of committee staff may advise individual delegates or the committee on the possible course of debate and may perform any of the functions of the chairperson as and when they are delegated to them.

The Press Corps is free to publish any material within the purview of the MUN. The Press enters and observes committee proceedings on the basis that the committee has no significant objections to their presence.

Appeal

Delegates are free to appeal any decision made by the Moderator or Director. However, it is at the Chairperson's discretion to accept or reject any or all appeals. Should the appeal not be related to immediate committee proceedings but the committee as a whole, the delegates may appeal to the Secretary-General.

Quorum

The Quorum for the conference is set at one-third of the members of the committee. A quorum will be assumed to be present unless specifically challenged and shown to be absent. A roll call is not required. In case quorum fails; committee session will be suspended at the discretion of the Secretary-General

On Debate

A guideline to the procedure followed to begin debate:

Setting the Agenda

At this MUN, the agenda is limited to the single topic area outlined in each committee's study guide. Thus, voting to set the agenda to the topic area is a mere formality. Since all committees have a single topic, this is a formality. This establishes the topic that will be discussed in committee through a vote. Once the agenda has been set, debate begins. In effect, there are two such formalities – 'the motion to open debate' and 'the motion to set agenda' respectively.

General Speaker's List

EST. 2024

A General Speaker's List must be opened by motioning for the same. In order to speak, the delegate's name must be placed on the General Speaker's List, which remains open through the committee. This can be done either by show of placards or through chits sent to the Executive Board with the name of the delegate's allotment on it. The General Speaker's List is open throughout the discussion of the topic area. Motions to open any other medium of debate will not close the General Speaker's List, but will only overlap it. Hence, if an allotment is in queue to speak on it and another medium of debate is opened, that allotment will remain in that position once the General Speaker's List is returned to.

Special Speakers' List

The Special Speakers' List is almost like the General Speaker's List, except that it must be motioned for. This is opened to discuss a particular topic within the topic area and is opened for a specific time period. While motioning to open it, the purpose and time limit must be specified. Speakers may only discuss the issue that the Special Speaker's List was opened to discuss. After a delegate finishes his/her speech, he/she has the option of yielding. If a delegate chooses not to yield, two 30- second comments are in order. After a speaker finishes a substantive speech (i.e., speech pertaining to the topic area within the restrictions of formal debate), two thirty- second comments pertaining to that speech may be made. The comments will be made by two speakers who (usually by show of placards) display their intent to the Chairperson. It is at the Chairperson's discretion that a delegate may make comments. This applies to the General Speaker's List as well as any Special Speaker's List

Yields

There are three different types of yields. Please remember, though, that yields only apply to substantive speeches, there is only one yield per speech, and yielding precludes any comments.

- To Points of Information's: With this yield, the Chairperson selects delegates who wish to ask you questions. Each delegate is allowed one question, and only your answer time is subtracted from your remaining time. Often the best kind of yield that you can make, yielding to questions lets you clear any misconceptions that delegates may have.
- To a delegate: When you yield to another delegate, he/she is given your remaining time to speak.
- To the Chair: After you make this yield, the Chairperson proceeds to the next speaker, unless there are any motions.

Moderated Caucus

The purpose of a moderated caucus is to facilitate substantive debate on a sub-part to the agenda or a crucial aspect of a crisis. Compared to the strict parliamentary order of formal debate, caucus may appear to be disorganized and hectic. A moderated caucus is also opened for a specified purpose and a specified time. Delegates must mention for how long and for what purpose they want to caucus, including the per speaker time. In a moderated Caucus, delegates should attempt to be precise and to the point. Delegates are advised to refrain from going off the immediate, specific, subtopic.

Unmoderated Caucus

It is used for negotiation that can lead to breakage of deadlock that formal debate has been unable to achieve or to formulate paperwork. An un-moderated caucus is a state of committee during which no speakers are recognized by the moderator. An un-moderated caucus temporarily suspends formal debate and allows members to discuss ideas informally in the committee room. The delegate making the motion must briefly explain the purpose of the motion and specify a time limit for the caucus. The motion will be put to a vote immediately, and a simple majority is required for passing such a motion.

How and When to Move to Caucus

When a motion for a caucus is raised, delegates must mention for how long and for what purpose they want to caucus. If you feel that discussion among delegates outside of formal debate is necessary, then move to an un-moderated caucus. Generally, delegates call for an un-moderated caucus to review ideas, or establish consensus.

A motion to caucus, since it is a non-debatable procedural motion, takes precedence over all other motions except for Parliamentary Points.

Reconsideration

A motion to reconsider is raised when an amendment or resolution has been decided upon. The Chairperson will recognize speakers for and against this motion, after which it is put to an immediate vote. A two-thirds majority of the members present and voting is required for reconsideration.

Points

1. Point of Personal Privilege: Whenever a delegate experiences personal discomfort that impairs his/her ability to participate in the proceedings, he/she may rise to a Point of Personal Privilege to request that the discomfort be corrected. While a Point of Personal Privilege may interrupt a speaker, delegates should use this power with the utmost discretion.
2. Point of Order: During the discussion of any matter, a delegate may rise to a Point of Order to indicate an instance of improper use of parliamentary procedure. The Point of Order will be immediately ruled upon by the Chairperson in accordance with these Rules of Procedure. The Chairperson may rule out of order those points that are dilatory or improper; such a decision cannot be appealed. A representative rising to a point of order may not speak on the substance of the matter under discussion. A point of order may only interrupt a speaker when the speech itself is not following proper parliamentary procedure. Moreover, a delegate may rise to a Point of Order to indicate a factual inaccuracy in another delegate's speech. (Note: There is a difference between opinion and a stated fact. For example: If a delegate says that he/she "believes" that Berlin is the capital of India, then a Point of Order cannot be raised since it is the other delegate's opinion being highlighted. However, if a delegate says that Berlin "is" the capital of India, then a Point of Order can be raised since Berlin is factually, the capital of Germany and not India.)
3. Point of Parliamentary Inquiry: When the floor is open, a delegate may rise to a Point of Parliamentary Inquiry to ask the Chairperson a question regarding the Rules of Procedure. A Point of Parliamentary Inquiry must never interrupt a speaker.
4. Point of Information: When a delegate has completed a speech, then the other delegates in committee can ask the delegate a Point of Information which is primarily a question on the speech given by a delegate. Every speech given in the General Speaker's List will have at least one Point of Information (subject to change) that can be asked by other delegates. The number of Points of Information (if any) on speeches by delegates in the Moderated Caucus will be determined by the Executive Board, depending on the content and nature of the speech.

5. Right to Reply: A delegate whose personal or national integrity has been impugned by another delegate may request in writing a Right of Reply. The Reply, if granted, will take the form of a thirty-second speech. Rights of Reply must be used judiciously and presented in the correct format: quoting what the offending delegate has said, the speaker's taken offence, an offense to the national integrity, and the demand for an apology.

Paperwork

Working Papers

Delegates may propose working papers for committee's consideration. The objective of a working paper is to bring to light certain solutions and to assist committee in further deliberation by attempting to solve the crisis at hand.

Format

Working Papers do not have any specific format. They can be accepted in complete resolution format, or as essays. However, care must be taken to keep the paper pertinent to the issue and the format such that the views of the makers can be appropriately articulated. The main idea behind a working paper is to ensure that solutions can be provided for a particular crisis being faced by committee.

Communiqués

Communiqués are messages from usually, an allotment or the entire committee to another country, organization, person or group of people. Communiqués can be bilateral (between two countries) or multilateral. They facilitate dialogue with relevant actors in a crisis so that delegates can take action to resolve the various crises presented to them in committee. Communiqués often include negotiations, threats, and requests for aid or support but are not limited to those topics. Keep in mind that a communiqué needs to be just as well worded as a directive and needs to be realistic enough. Delegates are to keep in mind that the Executive Board has absolute discretion with regards to ratifying and reading out any Communiqué submitted by a delegate as an update to the committee.

Communiqués may be either private or public.

Public Communiqué

A Public Communiqué is written to declare to the world that a country or an individual has decided to implement a particular policy or take a certain action, which can affect the dynamics of committees as a whole. It is only read out to the committee by the Executive Board if it is ratified or approved by the Executive Board.

Private Communiqué

A Private Communiqué is written by a delegate to an agency or individual within their own country, to conduct a certain action which is usually covert or clandestine in nature. Private Communiqués provide the delegates with the opportunity to be creative and formulate realistic ideas to change the dynamics of committee. The ideas written in private communiqués are only introduced by the Executive Board in the form of updates if the Executive Board believes that the idea is realistic and are in coherence with the Executive Board's own plan for committee.

Example of a Communiqué

Dear Mr. Phillip Hammond, It has come to our attention that British naval forces are currently forming a blockade across the mouth of the Mediterranean Sea, and blocking United States naval vessels. This is a threat to both our national security as well as economic security and we will not take it lightly. We expect full compensation for damages to trade, as well as a full reversal of the blockade. In your capacity as the United Kingdom's Secretary of State for Defense, stop this nonsense or face consequences.

Sincerely,

The United States Cabinet

Closure of Debate

When the floor is open, a delegate may move to close debate on the substantive or procedural matter under discussion.

Note: For all points of order, rights of reply, reconsideration motions, etc, delegates must quote the offending delegate / justify the motion appropriately. The Chairperson of the committee shall be the final authority on the validity of any motions / points.

Coming to Resolution

The desired product of successful negotiation is, of course, the resolution. Your solutions to the problems that the committee confronts take the form of a resolution. Resolutions represent the committee's final attempt to draw together the interests of many competing nations into a comprehensive solution that serves the interests of the collective world community. From the procedural perspective, the resolution is the formal document upon which the committee will take action via the amendment and voting processes.

Introducing Resolutions

Once a Resolution has been approved as stipulated above and has been copied and distributed, delegates may raise a motion to introduce the Resolution. This motion requires only authorization by the Executive Board and does not require a substantive vote. The dais staff, time permitting, may read out the Resolution to committee or ask an author to do so. A Resolution will remain on the floor until debate is closed or a resolution on that topic area has been passed.

Drafting the Resolution

Every good resolution should fulfill "the Three Cs": Comprehensive, Collaborative, and Conceivable. Virtually all the problems that the United Nations tackles are quite complex; for a resolution to be a good solution to a problem of global importance it must be comprehensive. If the Resolution is to gain enough support to be passed by the committee, then it must also be collaborative. Moreover, the Resolution must be binding by the Mandate (Set of rules and structures on which an organization is built and the powers it has) of the concerned committee. Finally, if the resolution is to gain the approval of the Director, then it must be conceivable. The realistic resolution must take into account the limitations of the United Nations and the current international balance of power so as to make the most effective use of diplomacy.

Finalizing the Resolution

One should type the Resolution out. Only soft copies shall be accepted and resolutions submitted on paper shall not be considered by the Executive Board. At this stage, it is important to carefully check grammar, syntax, style, etc. This Conference Handbook contains a Sample Resolution that delegates can follow. You must now get the required number of delegate signatures. When attempting to get signatures, it is important to remind delegates hesitant to sign that their signature does not bind them in any way to any future support, a signature only implies a desire to see the resolution out on the committee floor.

Passing the resolution

Once a Resolution has the required signatories and is also approved by the Chairperson of that committee, it is copied, distributed, and read out to the committee in unmoderated caucus. Any two signatories of the Resolution will read out the Operative Clauses of the resolution. The minimum number of signatories needed for a resolution to be considered by committee is 1/5th of the total strength of committee. If the motion receives a simple majority required for passage, the resolution shall be divided accordingly, and a vote shall be taken on each divided part for its passage. Parts of the resolution which are passed shall be recombined into the final resolution and shall be put to a substantive vote as a whole. If all the operative parts of the proposal are rejected, the resolution or amendment in question will be considered to be rejected as a whole.

Emendments

Following the reading, a moderated caucus may be held where delegates clarify the syntax (and syntax only) of the proposed resolution. This process of emending must take place before the vote.

Amendments

As not everything can be worked out prior to the introduction of resolutions, it is expected that amendments to resolutions will be presented on the floor. The amendment process allows delegates to alter parts of a resolution without scrapping the entire document, strengthening consensus on the resolution by allowing delegates to change sections upon which they disagree. However, delegates must be aware of the direction in which the amendments are steering the committee. If the amendments are not substantive, they merely bog the committee down in procedure.

1. An approved amendment may be introduced when the floor is open. General debate will be suspended and two Speaker's Lists will be established, one for and one against the amendment. Debate will alternate between each list.
2. A motion to close debate will be in order after the committee has heard two speakers— for the motion and two against, or when one of the Speakers' Lists is exhausted. In accordance with the normal procedure, the Chairperson will recognize two speakers against the motion to close debate, and a two-thirds majority is required for closure of debate.
3. When debate is closed on the amendment, the Committee will move to an immediate— vote. Votes on amendments are substantive votes. After the vote, debate will return to the General Speaker's List.

Voting

Once committee is in voting procedure and all relevant motions have been entertained, the committee will vote on the resolutions on the floor. Voting occurs on each resolution in succession; once a resolution has been passed, no further resolutions will be voted on. In all matters, both substantive and procedural, each country will have one vote. Each vote may be a “Yes,” “No,” or “Abstain.” Most matters shall be voted upon by a show of placards, but roll call vote shall come into play during voting on the passage of any kind of paperwork (or otherwise at the discretion of the chair. Delegates have the option of voting “Yes with Rights” and “No with Rights”. A delegate votes in either manner when their vote on the draft resolution could violate their foreign policy. During voting, no delegate can raise a motion or a point till voting ceases except for a point of personal privilege or a point of order in connection with the actual conduct of the voting. A simple majority requires more “Yes” votes than “No” votes; abstentions are not counted toward either total. A two-thirds majority vote requires at least twice as many “Yes” votes as “No” votes. A procedural vote is a vote on any matter besides an amendment or resolution, and requires every allotment to vote either “Yes” or “No” on the question.

Roll Call Voting for substantive motions

- In a roll call vote, the Chairperson will call all countries noted by the dais to be in attendance in alphabetical order starting with a randomly selected member.
- In the first sequence, delegates may vote “Yes,” “No,” “Abstain,” “Pass,” “Yes with rights,” or “No with rights.”
- A delegate who passes during the first sequence of the roll call must vote “Yes” or “No” during the second sequence. The same delegate may not request the right of explanation.
- A delegate may only vote with rights if he or she votes “Yes” or “No” in the first round of voting and if his or her vote appears to insinuate a divergence from his or her country’s policy. After all delegates have voted, delegates who had requested the right of explanation will be granted 30 seconds each to explain their votes.

- The Chairperson will then announce the outcome of the vote.
- While roll call is taken at the beginning of the session, delegates may reply by saying either ‘present’ or ‘present and voting’. Those calling out the latter in response are compelled to vote by saying ‘yes’ or ‘no’ during formal voting, while those only responding ‘present’ during the roll call at the commencement of the session can also ‘abstain’ later.

RESOLUTION FORMATTING GUIDELINES

Heading

The title should be centered, in capital letters, above the body of the draft resolution. The next two lines should list the name of the committee and the title of the topic, left-aligned. Note that only a maximum of five authors should be listed (The number of authors of a Resolution is upon the discretion of the Executive Board).

Body

The body of a resolution is written in the format of a long sentence, with the following rules:

- The committees of the General Assembly and Security Council should begin their resolutions with “The General Assembly” and “The Security Council,” respectively. All other committees should use their own names in the introductory line. The rest of the resolution is comprised of two sets of clauses.
- The first set consists of perambulatory clauses, which describe the problem being addressed, recall past actions taken, explain the purpose of the resolution, and offer support for the operative clauses that follow. Each clause in the preamble begins with an italicized (or underlined, if handwritten) word or phrase and ends with a comma.

- The second set consists of operative clauses, which are numbered and state the action(s) to be taken by the body. These clauses all begin with present tense active verbs, which are generally stronger words than those used to begin perambulatory clauses. These verbs are underlined. All operative clauses, except the last, which ends with a period, are followed by semi-colons.

POSITION PAPER

Every committee will be having position papers which are primarily documents to highlight your allotment's policy regarding a particular agenda. It consists of three fundamental parts:

1. Statement of the Problem
2. Policy Pertaining to the Agenda
3. Solutions

The last date for the submission of position papers is 21st July, 11: 59 P.M. All position papers and other documents and paperwork must be mailed to respective email ids of each committee.

Please do read the Sample Position Paper given below for reference and further understanding.

Position Paper Format

1. Heading
 - Country: [Country Name]
 - Committee: [Committee Name, e.g., ExComm]
 - Topic: [Specific Issue/Agenda being discussed]
 - Delegate Name: [Your Name]
2. Introduction
 - Briefly introduce the issue at hand and why it is significant.
 - Highlight your country's general stance on the issue.
3. Background
 - Provide context or historical background on how this issue has affected your country or other countries.
 - Mention any past actions your country has taken regarding this issue.
4. Country's Position
 - State your country's official stance on the issue.
 - Explain why your country holds this stance, using supporting evidence or data if possible.
 - Address any related sub-issues (e.g., human rights, economic impacts).
5. Proposed Solutions
 - Suggest specific steps or actions that your country believes would help solve or address the issue.
 - Include any resolutions, collaborations, or international support your country would be open to.
6. Conclusion
 - Summarize your main points.

- Reaffirm your country's commitment to addressing the issue and any potential compromises or collaborations.

Sample Position Paper

Country: India

Committee: All India Political Parties Meet (AIPPM)

Topic: The Social and Economic Impacts of Agricultural Reforms

Delegate Name: [Your Name]

Introduction

Agriculture is the backbone of India's economy, directly influencing the livelihoods of over 50% of our population. With the new agricultural reforms, India aims to modernize the sector, enhance productivity, and improve farmers' income. However, the issue is contentious, sparking protests and concerns among farmers. Addressing this topic is crucial to ensuring food security, economic stability, and the welfare of millions of Indians.

Background

India has a long history of policies aimed at stabilizing agriculture, from the Green Revolution to price support schemes. The recent reforms seek to open up agricultural markets and reduce dependency on middlemen. However, these changes have raised concerns about market volatility, corporate exploitation, and small farmers' livelihoods. To date, the Indian government has engaged in several rounds of dialogue with farmer unions to address these concerns.

Country's Position

The Government of India believes the reforms are essential for integrating Indian agriculture with global markets, encouraging private investment, and reducing wastage through a more streamlined supply chain. While we acknowledge the concerns raised by farmers, particularly regarding price security, we are committed to addressing these through mechanisms like minimum support prices (MSP) and grievance redressal.

India firmly supports a balanced approach that protects farmers while fostering a more competitive agricultural sector. We also recognize the need for training and resources to help small-scale farmers adapt to the changes.

Proposed Solutions

1. Assurance of MSP: The government remains open to discussing legal assurances on MSP to protect farmers from market fluctuations.
2. Market Regulation: A transparent mechanism for monitoring corporate players entering the agricultural sector will be established to prevent exploitation.

3. Farmer Assistance Programs: We propose increased funding for training programs, financial literacy, and technological support to help farmers transition smoothly.
4. Incentives for Sustainable Practices: Encouraging organic farming and sustainable practices to boost environmental health and farmer incomes.

Conclusion

India is committed to reforming agriculture in a way that benefits all stakeholders. We seek cooperation from all parties to create a resilient and equitable system that secures the welfare of farmers and fosters growth. India remains open to discussions, revisions, and collaborations with other countries facing similar agricultural challenges.
